Still cruisin' at ninety

Second highest bid chosen

Council elects Western Management as firm that will conduct operational review

Kris Dubé
The Times

A firm has been chosen by council to conduct a third-party operational review of Town Hall.

At Monday night's regular council meeting, local politicians opted to accept the second highest of five bids from firms who applied to undertake an assessment of efficiency within the Town of Fort Erie.

It will be conducted by Western Management, for the price tag of $91,247 with taxes included.

On June 13, council submitted their ranking of what would be the best group to go ahead with the operational review, with KPMG Consulting coming out on top, with its $52,850 asking price.

The Randolph Group ($44,318) and Tim L. Dobbie

Consulting ($28,250) were the runners-up.

At this meeting, council tabled the report that recommended moving ahead with KPMG Consulting, until presentations could be heard by the other two firms who also applied to conduct the review.

This took place at a special council meeting prior to Monday's regular meeting. Council heard from Western Management Consultants, the group that council eventually endorsed and Organizational Thoughtware, who put in a bid for $96,592.

A motion was put on the table by Ward 6 Coun. Paul Collard to accept and move ahead with paying $91,247 for the review.

"It's imperative we get this correct," said Collard.

Considering council originally set aside $150,000 for this initiative, Collard said money is still being saved with accepting a bid from a company that will cost $36,397 more than going with the firm that was given a top ranking from the majority of council.

"It's still coming in under budget and I think it's the best bang for our dollar," said Collard.

Ward 4 Coun. John Hill feels the Western Management group will provide the depth needed to properly address efficiencies or inefficiencies at the municipal building.

"This is an investment into the future of Fort Erie and I think we should take the opportunity to do the best we can do," said Hill.

Ward 2 Coun. Rick Shular was not pleased with the direction the conversation seemed to be heading in, saying the original plan of accepting the bid from KPMG Consulting should be accepted... because of their reputation across the world and the price they were asking.

"I'm not comfortable this evening based on their presentations, or from what I've read, that they're going to do twice as much, in regards to what we're expecting," said Shular.

Don Lubberts, the councillor for Ward 5, said before he was elected onto council, he recalls a figure of $250,000 being tossed around for the possible cost of an operational review, when members of the previous council attempted to have an operational review done, but didn't get support from the majority of council.

"At that time, I thought it was a lot of money," he said.

Now, with council setting aside $150,000 for the review, it seemed like a much easier amount to aim for and spending over $91,000 shouldn't be considered a problem.

"That was a realistic number to me," said Lubberts.

Ward 3 Coun. Bob Steckley agreed, saying the dollars being spent are still much less than what council could have potentially embraced in the form of $150,000.

"It's still coming in 30 per cent under-budget than what council allocated for it," said Steckley.

Mayor Doug Martin was not impressed with the direction his council seemed to be heading in with this decision.

He feels it's time to start pinching pennies and be more careful with spending taxpayer money.

"We seem to be spending money frivolously," said Martin.

It's a hot one out there

Kris Dubé
Fort Erie Times

It's been one of those weeks in the weather. It hurts to stand barefoot on a wooden deck and eating an ice cream cone outside is a messy disaster waiting to happen.

Many Niagara residents anticipated Thursday to be one of the hottest scorers they have ever experienced...and Environment Canada says it is pretty close.

Marie-Eve Giguère, a meteorologist with Environment Canada spoke to the Times on Thursday at about 2 p.m. and the closest thermometer regulated by the federal agency was reading a crisp 35 degrees Celsius in Welland.

She did point out that it is likely some areas would record a higher temperature, but Environment Canada gets its data from thermometers that are kept in a standard environment across the country.

"It's to ensure there is no direct sun or shadow," she said.

In St. Catharines, a weather station recorded 35.9 degrees Celsius...but still it could be stickier in other areas of the region that aren't the same temperature as the regulated stations where she retrieved the data from.

Some people walking in the street might experience temperatures higher than those," she said.

The highest temperature Niagara has reached was 37.8 Celsius... In 1911, 1931 and 1948.

From 1967 until 2009 Environment Canada did have a weather station in Fort Erie and the highest the mercury ever rose there was in 2005 when it hit 35.5 Celsius.

The most crisp it has ever been on a July 21 was 1980, when local residents were burned with a 31 degree temperature.

Giguère said the term 'heatwave' is used rather loosely and that 'heat episode' and 'heat spell' are synonymous to its meaning, but efforts are being made to make the definition more clear.

Environment Canada and Health Canada are looking at defining 'heat wave' and the specific criteria of it," she said.

What makes this current heat episode North Americans are dealing with unique, is that it is caused by a tropical air mass that has increased the humidity to around 45 degrees.

Because of this, overnight lows for the week that are expected to last until the weekend are above the average most people are used to. They are usually around the high teens this time of year, but have been a steady 22 degrees for most of the week.

"It makes the heat episode more uncomfortable because the body doesn't get to cool down as much at night," she said.

High temperatures are expected for the weekend and into next week.

AN INSTRUMENT AS RUGGED AS YOU!

The latest generation of hearing instrument users is not content to merely limit their use of their cutting-edge devices to social occasions and work environments. They also want to wear their hearing devices when walking, running, bicycling, playing tennis, hiking in the woods, and kayaking. After all, active people don't want to limit their experiences by not being able to hear the sounds of running water and chirping birds. With this in mind, hearing instrument manufacturers are producing devices that utilize nanotech-based coatings that prevent moisture from seeping into water-sensitive circuitry. Along with a cover that protects the microphone from moisture and an easily replaceable user protection system, these instruments also deliver the latest in automated functionality.

If you are experiencing problems with your ears or hearing, then call HEARINGAID BALANCE & HEARING CLINICS at 905-871-4242. Tripartite committee will set scope of hospital plan review

Kris Dube
The Times

A probe of the Niagara Health System's Hospital Improvement Plan (HIP) is in its early stages, but it is underway nonetheless.

Mayor Doug Martin is one of nine members of a recently formed tripartite committee, that has been given the task of setting the terms of reference for the review of the NHS when it is conducted.

He attended a meeting at the Hamilton Niagara Haldimand Brant Local Health Integration Network (LHIN)'s office in Grimsby on Monday, after which he feels the independent review is something Niagara residents have been requesting since the hospital plan was implemented two years ago by the LHIN, the mayor hopes a separate review of the Douglas Memorial site scheduled for September will be conducted on its own.

"I'm not comfortable with it being folded into the overall review," said Martin.

Critics in the local community slammed the HIP when it first came into effect, mostly because it stripped Fort Erie and Port Colborne of their emergency rooms.

Martin said having them returned to both municipalities would be great news, but hopes the probe of the restructuring plan will allow for many programs and services that remain at Douglas Memorial to continue being available for patients.

The urgent care centre is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week...which was not part of the plan when it was first introduced to the public by the NHS.

"There are many things at our hospital that provide service and we want to see that continue and be enhanced," said Martin.

The burning question for Martin, is whether or not wait times have increased at other Niagara hospitals, because people are using them instead of seeking available treatment at Douglas Memorial.

"Is it because they are no longer using the smaller hospitals for those less urgent situations?"

Minister of Health Deb Matthews asked for the review of the NHS in late May, following continued input from residents and Niagara politicians, who felt it should be undertaken.

In a letter to regional chair Gary Burroughs, she said Ontario has focused on making sure all changes that have been implemented in Niagara's hospitals, were done for the right reasons and will deliver quality care to the area.

"Our government is absolutely committed to ensuring that the people of Niagara have access to the highest quality health care," she said.

The tripartite committee will set the ground rules and scope of the review and is also responsible for choosing the consultant to execute of it.

Martin expects requests for proposals will be sent out in September.

Niagara Falls member of provincial parliament also attended Monday's briefing at the LHIN's office in Grimsby. He is pleased with a couple of things he has heard so far, mostly the fact that minister Deb Matthews has not limited the scope of the review. The committee itself will decide what areas are touched on, and will be able to investigate more than just what has been implemented so far.

YOUR GARDEN CAN HELP FEED PEOPLE IN NEED

Now that your gardens are filled with an overabundance of fruit and vegetables, why not donate some to your local food banks. Root vegetables are best... however, any produce that can be easily handled and stored including broccoli, cabbage, carrots, peas, beans, tomatoes, radishes, parsnips, sweet peppers, summer squash, apples and pears are welcome.

Please contact the donation centre before donating. Your donation, whether it's a bag of tomatoes, a truckload of zucchini, a box of apples or something else that you've grown, will be appreciated and put to good use. Simply remove any soil and bring it in. This is a very nice way to help your community.

The Canadian Association of Food Banks (CAF) is the national umbrella for food banks in Canada with members in every province. It distributes corporate food donations and works on behalf of its members and families they serve with the objective that no one should go hungry in Canada.

HOW YOU CAN HELP NEXT YEAR

Whether your vegetable garden is large or small, add an additional row, herb pot, or just plant something extra. If you have extra fruit or vegetables, earmark them for donation.

Encourage your family and friends to do the same. This is a wonderful project for everyone, from small children to seniors, from those who have huge vegetable garden plots to balcony gardeners who can grow vegetables in pots.

ECO FRIENDLY TIP OF THE WEEK

Waste is all our unwanted material: rubbish, trash, garbage or junk. This is important because some waste can be recovered and recycled. Other types of waste are biodegradable which means they naturally degrade into the soil. But some types of waste continue to pile up so much so that the earth could be completely covered if we don't manage waste properly.

MUNICIPAL CLASS ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT

The Study

The Town of Fort Erie (the Town), through their consultant AECOM, has completed a Municipal Class Environmental Assessment (Class EA) for the replacement of the College Road and House Road bridge structures (see maps) located in the north central part of the Town. The Town's Municipal Class Environmental Assessment and Replacement Needs Study and a follow-up bridge and culvert inspection identified serious structural deterioration and the need to bring the bridge crossings up to current standards. As such the study and inspections recommended a full bridge structure replacement for both College Road and House Road Bridges as soon as possible.

The Process

The study has been conducted in accordance with the approved requirements of a Schedule "B" project as defined in the Municipal Engineers Association's Municipal Class EA document (October 2000), as amended in 2007. The Class EA process includes public and review agency consultation, an evaluation of alternatives, an assessment of the impacts of the proposed improvements, and identification of measures to mitigate any adverse impacts.

A Project File for each of the proposed bridges has been established and prepared, which documents the Class EA planning and decision-making process. By this notice, the Project Files are being placed on public notice for a 30-day/active review period starting on July 19th, 2011, and ending on August 18th, 2011. Best wishes to top staffer

The local council has some pretty big shoes to fill, as it will begin looking for a new chief administrative officer for the Town of Fort Erie next month.

Under the leadership of Harry Schlange, this community has seen a lot of progress...some of it has been contested by residents and members of council, but it was his staff that attracted certain projects like Bay Beach and the Canadian Motor Speedway to the area, which he definitely deserves recognition for. But all that aside, Schlange will be a personality that will most likely be difficult to replicate.

You couldn't ask for a nicer guy.

I'm sure we will hear some feedback about this, from people who disagree with some of the projects he has introduced to the community...but that's not really what we are talking about here.

We want to recognize Schlange for the way he was observed, at least by the Times, over the last few years.

Rarely did you ever see him without a smile on his face and was always more than helpful whenever we had to inquire about a Town matter. He easily took time out of his busy schedule to explain the needed details and never made it seem like a bother.

The Times would like to wish him all the best in his next challenge and hope he has many years of continued success.

Editor not singing 'Koombyah' this week

Kris Dubé
Editor of Notebook

Back and forth I go.

Last Saturday, I made another call to the community to take a second look at their behaviour and the way certain local politicians are treated.

This was just my opinion and an attempt to be as neutral as I possibly can.

I don't disrespect anyone just because they have a different view than me and that remains true today. I have disagreed with the individuals I stood up for last week, on many occasions.

And this week I am not going to tell everyone to sing 'Koombyah' from the camp fire because I feel most people have no plans to listen.

But I do have an opinion about the award of tender to Western Management for an operational review of town hall.

I'm not going to touch on the merits of the review itself, but I am concerned with the amount of money being used to have it done. Almost $92,000 compared to the $52,000 a firm that is just as qualified put on the table, is what this will cost taxpayers.

Yes, council did set aside $150,000 for the review and the amount being spent is significantly less than that. But $152,000 and not going with KMPG (the firm council originally planned to go with) points to the obvious...councillors who said before the election they were going to lower taxes if they were victorious, didn't actually mean that.

I understand sometimes paying a little extra might get you more quality in your product, but when the Town has roads that are embarassing as they are and other projects that will need funding...sometimes you have to go with the best bargain.

I just recently got myself a new car from a local dealership. It's a 2011 Toyota Corolla.

Kicking around ideas on what vehicle I might find myself cruising around in, I was going to get myself a Lamborghini at first.

But after examining my finances a little more closely, I realized I couldn't afford it.

This applies to council's recent decision, to move forward with the second most expensive of five firms who applied to conduct the review.

There is no money left in the Town's facilities reserve fund, because council decided to put it towards restoring the Point Abino Lighthouse.

It was a tough decision and I see both sides of the argument...some feel it was a wasteful allocation of funds and others believe it was a message that council cares about local heritage.

I agree with both claims.

But when council does make a decision like it did on the lighthouse, there should have been an agreement throughout all members of council that being frugal for the next little while is a priority.

You simply cannot keep spending and spending, when you ran an election platform that said taxes were too high under the previous administration and once you get elected into office, spend $40,000 more on a consultant than was originally planned.

I stand by my claims last week that there is too much negativity in this town, but on this matter...I respectfully disagree with the decision that was made.

Fort Erie a spectacle for region and province to 'laugh at'

What does firm offer that others didn't?

Dear Editor,

In addition to warm weather, investigations are in the air. I know, it's a mixed metaphor.

OK, so now we are going to examine the functions and efficiencies of our fair municipality and the staff that we have hired to serve us, as well as the correctness of electioneering by our city fathers?

To this end we have hired an outside agency to help us identify where or how we can improve as well as turning to the Niagara Compliance Audit Committee to sort out our forever election. Leaving aside the wrong-headed notion our council has of spending more to receive staffing efficiency suggestions, it is not a necessarily bad idea to periodically do this.

However, we did not hear, clearly stated or unclearly for that matter, why the new members of council immediately felt the need to root around in the various departments and their staffing. We must beware, if the motive is to take political action against staff members or town managers. What is to be done with the report when it is finally received? Will we find senior staffers somehow to blame for some unstated errors? What is the problem? Did we hear our newcomers to government somehow expressing displeasure with our town staff functions, or did we not? Did we miss something? Some major foulup? We hope we will not be losing valuable skills at department management levels if these managers or staffers do not choose to be selected as the root of some problem, after doing their best to be of service to the town.

What did the current selected firm offer that the previous selection did not? It must be something for the councilors to be willing to pay $40,000 extra. At this point we have no choice but to rely on the professionalism of this expensive firm and the fairness and accuracy of their report. Can we hope for some positive results and not more controversy?

On the other hand we see council being stingy when it comes to trying to save the jobs at Pharmacies. We don't have $50,000 to save a major employer, but did have extra dough to investigate town hall?

Come on people, if you must investigate, try checking on our disgraceful roads, for instance. You should be demonstrating some positive thinking and actions to advance our town rather appearing to make us a political spectacle for the region and province to laugh at.

Reader questions council's choice of firm

Dear Editor,

Really?

Four councilors really thought that the Western Management Consulting presentation was the best. Four people really thought that the Western presentation would be worth almost $40,000 more. Some councilors really thought that they were doing well because they were under budget. Is this a deeply terrifying nightmare?

I have watched since the beginning of the year starting with the debate on the ramifications of the Molinaro purchase agreement. I stated at a council meeting in February that there was no question that the town solicitor was correct in her review of that same contract and that we would be liable. By a vote of 4-3, "we" still went out and got another opinion that agreed with the town solicitor. At least at the end of the private session with the outside legal team, the vote to proceed with the Molinaro offer was now 5-2.

Moving forward into spring the council by a vote of 4-2, agreed to spend just under $400,000.00 (of our money) to repair a light-house with limited access, (or basically no access). I frankly can not understand that move but what the heck... it is democracy.

But the cliché had to be council's decision on Monday July 18 to hire a consulting firm that scored lower on the town criteria list and cost almost twice as much. Apparently the "bridesmaid" was KPMG a world wide and highly renowned Management services company. Actually KPMG just completed a review of the Toronto city government.

I understand that councilors are there to make the best choices for us, but again I ask: really?

Four councilors thought that the Western bid was the best. The same four councilors that voted on the light-house expenditure, the same four councilors that voted for the independent legal review of the Bay Beach Agreement.

Is it me or is democracy not really looking very democratic?

Welcome Centre inviting community to have a look at history

New facility provides more opportunity to share local heritage

Sarah Ferguson
The Times

The Old Fort Erie has received a much-needed face lift and she is hardly recognizable.

With a shiny new visitor centre that opened its doors on Canada Day, a museum showing exhibits from 1815 until now, a theatre and themed rooms in the actual fort, Old Fort

Our focus of all the improve-ments is to tell the story of the people."

— Heather Gorman

Erie is able to tell the story of the soldiers who lived there during the War of 1812.

"Our focus with all of the improvements is to tell the story of the people," says

Heather Gorman, manager of the Old Fort.

Walking into the new museum, it is more interactive, offering a hands-on history lesson.

She says some of the information in the museum was provided by residents in the community.

"We had a great-great-grandson bring us a picture of Daniel King, who was a soldier in 1817—it's really exciting."

Along with the museum experience there are daily demonstrations of the weaponry of the war and daily skirmishes.

The fort has also added a surgical room and a native encampment room to show the items used during those times.

"In the surgical room, we show all of the tools they used to operate on people, and in the native room we have a beautiful birch bark canoe that was used."

Most of the items in these rooms are replicas, but the idea behind these new features was to replace an old and stagnant museum with something a little more interesting, says Gorman.

As part of a project to rejuvenate the history in the Niagara region, the provincial and federal government provided $8.94 million in stimulus funding to the Old Fort Erie, the MacFarland House and the Laura Secord House in Niagara-on-the-Lake.

This funding comes in preparation for the War of 1812 bicentennial celebration, taking place next year.

Pender Harbour victorious at Prince of Wales

Kris Dubé
The Times

It was a razor sharp finish at Sunday's Prince of Wales stakes race.

Coming out of the gate since 1959 at the Fort Erie Racetrack, the second jewel in the Canadian triple crown has been an elite gathering at the 114-year-old border oval.

Down the stretch at this weekend's race, three horses could have stolen first place with a couple strong strides at the end. Pender Harbour stole the show, with Oh Canada, ridden by local jockey Krista Carignan coming in second and Bowman's Causeway taking the third spot.

Jockey Luis Contreras, who is two for two when it comes to the triple crown this year, was smiling from ear to ear when he met with members of the media in the Prince of Wales Dining Room after the race.

"I'm very excited," said the rider, a native of Mexico who also won the Queen's Plate atop the horse Inglorious.

Since it was such a photo finish, Contreras knew he was most likely in the top three, but didn't know exactly what the end result was immediately after.

"I wasn't sure if I had won the race," he said.

Still a very modest with all the media attention the big win sent in his direction, he wanted to thank the people that provided this opportunity for him.

"It's amazing and I want to say thanks to the owners for letting me ride their horse," said Contreras.

Trainer Mike DiPaolo said it was "genuine victory" and is proud of both his rider and horse's performance on the track.

According to him, the horse has struggled at times on the inside of the track. But he was able to pull through.

"Today he had a clear path and got the money," said DiPaolo.

Bob Giffin and his wife Rhonda, along with two other individuals have owned the victorious thoroughbred for about two years and he agrees it was purchase that is certainly paying off.

"It's unbelievable, it was a competitive field of horses and we're fortunate to be able to run at the top," said Giffin.

It is with utmost pride that we announce the graduation of Lisa Marie Anderson from the University at Buffalo with a doctorate in Pharmacy. Lisa has achieved the Dean's list while attending the University at Buffalo and is now licensed as a Pharmacist in Ontario.

Lisa today marks the beginning of many new joys and accomplishments and a continuation of all the goals you have already achieved.
The greater danger for most of us lies not in setting our aim too high and falling short, but in setting our aim too low, and achieving our mark (a quote by Michelangelo).
Wishing you continued success.
We are so very proud of you! Mom, Chris, Gerry, family and friends.

And his hand we cannot touch
Still we have so many memories
Of the one we loved so much.

Baskerville, Bill
April 29, 1941 - July 19, 2004
Sometimes when life just gets you down and there seems no place to turn.
We need to think of someone from whose lessons we can learn.
If you want to know a person who no challenge was too great.
Think of Bill whose strength and will is less we can take.
He never gave up nor showed his pain, his spirit was strong and his heart was true.
He nudged along so very strong, his words
so rarely spoken.
